A Lieutenant Now

Aboard a Destroyer in the Atlantic—John Selmer Larsen, Jr., 28, of Marblehead, Mass., has been promoted to lieutenant (junior grade) USNR. He is serving aboard a destroyer of the Atlantic Fleet, as senior engineering officer.

His wife is the former Jean Kimball of Warren. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Larsen of Marblehead. They have another son, Ivan, 26, who is a boatswain's mate, first class, in the Navy. Lt. Larsen graduated from the University of Maine with the class of 1943.

A turkey weighing 43 1/4 pounds was sold by Roland Achorn to the Thomdike Hotel this week, and it was necessary to dismember the big bird before it could be crowded into Dick's modern oven. Properly roasted it was a feast for hungry eyes.

'T WAS A HAPPY MEETING

Col. Red Preston and Capt. Dick Reed Talk
Shop and Home in the Mariannas

Tinian in The Mariannas.
June 20.
Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

Lieut. Colonel "Red" Preston of Rockland had just returned from a fire bomb raid on Osaka, when I greeted him at this Tinian Island base in the Mariannas.

"Red" had just brought his giant Super-Fortress to a landing on one of the strips of the world's largest airbase, after leading a large formation on the 16-hour round trip flight of 2800 miles.

One by one the winged monsters had broken through the clouds, circled the island and settled down to a roaring 140-mile an hour landing. It was a tremendous spectacle—a humbling display of the awesome air might that America is throwing into this Pacific war.

Despite the nervous strain and exhaustion of one of these strikes at the very heart of the Nippon homeland, "Red's" face was wreathed with his infectious smile when he crawled down through the nose wheel hatch. Obviously he was extremely happy to see someone from the old home town.

"You can't imagine what the fires were like over there, "Dick," was his first comment on the strike. He told of how mammoth columns of smoke rose 20,000 feet from every section of the great industrial city.

"It was as though a dam had broken and flooded the city in a sea of flames," he said.

Taking another look from the nose to the tail of "Red's" Super-Fort I could better appreciate why Osaka had been so quickly and so beautifully devastated.

I had personally watched similar action from the bomb bay of a B-24 over the Philippines, but on a much smaller scale. The B-29s are truly enormous weapons of destruction.

On this raid more than 500 of them had emptied their unbelievably large loads of incendiaries on the paper city.

Col. Preston is a squadron commander and it was his tenth flight over Nippon. He has watched Tokio in its dying agonies, the destruction of great industrial areas of Yokohama and Nagoya and has laid mines that are sealing the Japanese harbors to all shipping.

"Red" was over Tokio the day that the incendiary fires were fanned by a 70-mile gale.

"That was a fire to end all fires," he said. He watched the inferno as it swept across the city and threatened to completely envelop the Imperial Palace.

To this day he cannot understand how any of the city was saved.

Like all soldiers "Red" had rather talk about home than the war. "Every time I get on one of these long flights to the homeland I think of how nice it would be if I was flying from California to Maine instead," he said.

The following afternoon I called on "Red" again and went to the line with him as he "sweat" the take off of his crews. We drove up to each of the planes of his squadron which was scheduled for the strike. Col. Preston gave last minute instructions and made sure that every plane and every crewman was ready for the ordeal.

Later we parked near the end of the strip and watched the take-offs, the graceful, silver colored Fords lumbered up the runway, gathered speed and were off into the blue. Ahead of them lay the islands of Japan and more lush targets.

Back at the squadron "Red" showed me the latest photos of the devastated Japan cities. The scope of the devastation is fantastic. The Nips may fight to the bitter end but after a few more months of attacks by the B-29s they will have nothing left to fight for but their gory ideals.

As I watched Col. Preston directing the activities of his fighting organization, I thought of the long way he had come since he was pioneering the infant aviation activity around Rockland. Today he holds a big job in the most sensational and conclusive action of the Pacific war to date. Hundreds of combat crewmen and ground men look to the wiry adopted Yankee for leadership.

"Red" isn't fully made up his mind whether he will stick to the Army or head back for Maine and civilian life after the war. He is definitely leaning towards the latter.

Just before I left, he offered to take me along on a ride to Tokio, "if you are foolish enough to want to go."

I declined, with thanks, at least until I have gotten over the jitters from some of the missions which I flew out of the Palau's.

Incidentally while "Red" and I were talking about the old gang back home and the hunting, fishing and other things that go to make Maine the wonderful State that it is, the mail orderly brought in three issues of the Courier.

"Like every good Rockland man, I drop everything else when Winslow's letter from home comes in, and read it word for word," said Preston.

Ladies Night At The Thorn-
dike Hotel a Happy Affair
—Officers Installed
by "Salome"

And here's the new King Lion,
Sam Savitt

Rockland Lions, with ladies and other guests, held a gala party at the Thorn-dike Hotel Wednesday night, partaking of one of Lion Nathan Berlawsky's fine chicken dinners.

The party was held in the main dining room, the satisfying meal being served by an efficient corps of waitresses under direction of Adelaide Shepherd (Adelman), the hotel hostess.

The meeting opened with the singing of "America," with Rev. Ernest Ogden Kenyon at the organ. Father Kenyon led in the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag and offered prayer. During the progress of the dinner there was spirited singing, led by Sam Savitt, Gerald Grant, Arthur Jordan and Howard Crockett, with Dr. Blake B. Annis at the piano.

President Bradford P. Burgess, presiding at his final meeting of the year, directed the introduction of all those present and then presented, as a complete surprise, to Joshua N. Southard, skipper of the Sea Scout Ship "Red Jacket," a certificate indicating that the Red Jacket Ship of Boy Scouts of the Pine Tree Council had attained membership in the Regional Flagship Flotilla and was entitled to fly the flag of a Sea Scout ship of that class. The troop, with many members in the armed forces, is sponsored by the Lions Club.

Perfect attendance pins, for the past year, were presented to Dr. Blake B. Annis, Dr. James F. Burgess, Howard P. Crockett, Gerald S. Grant, Eugene E. Stoddard, Wilbur F. Senter, F. A. Winslow, E. Stewart Orbeton (not present at the affair), and Dr. Bradford P. Burgess.

Lawrence J. Dandeneau, better known since the minstrel show as "Salome," in his capacity as zone chairman, informally installed the new officers: Sam J. Savitt, King Lion Elwood Hodgkins, secretary; Howard P. Crockett, treasurer; Gerald S. Grant, 2d vice president; Dr. Dana S. Newman and Dr. Bradford Burgess, directors; Arthur S. Jordan, lion tamer, and Wilbur F. Senter, tail twister. Frank F. Harding 1st vice president, not present, and Amory B. Allen, a director, who had left before the party had progressed this far, will be installed at a later meeting. It was announced that there would be no meeting on July 4.

The final number on a notable program was the showing, with Albert Cassidy, projector, of the colored motion picture, "Eighteenth Century Life in Williamsburg, Virginia."

Those present were: Dr. and Mrs. Bradford P. Burgess, Mr. and Mrs. Sam J. Savitt, Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Hodgkins, Lawrence J. Dandeneau, Henry A. Howard, Harriet Slisby, Wilbur F. Senter, Mr. and Mrs. Frost, Thomas C. Stone, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald S. Grant, Mr. and Mrs. Alan Grossman, Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. MacPhail, Mr. and Mrs. Ellery Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Richard Warren, 14, Was Drowned While Swimming
In Megunticook.

Richard P. Warren, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Merton P. Warren of Camden, while swimming with three other boys in Lake Megunticook yesterday, was drowned. Franklin Grey, 14, made an effort to rescue young Warren as he sank in deep water. It was reported that the boy was learning to swim.

The body was recovered by members of the Camden Fire Department under the direction of Edwin R. Dodge, assistant fire chief. Dr. Charles D. North of Rockland, medical examiner, said that death was due to accidental drowning. The other boys were Milton Grover and Edwin Nelson.

Besides his parents, two brothers, Pfc. Robert P. Warren, who is training in Arkansas, and Petty Officer, 2c Merton P. Warren, Jr., who is training in Maryland, survive.

Services will be held in the P. J. Good Funeral Home Sunday afternoon at 2:30, with Rev. Melvin Dorr, Jr., D. D., officiating. Interment will be in Sea View cemetery, Rockland.

Brownell Is Coming

Maine State Republican Chairman, Lloyd B. Morton of Farmington, announced today that Herbert Brownell Jr. of New York, chairman of the Republican National committee would be in Maine June 6 to attend a meeting of the Republican State Committee called for 3:30 p. m. on that day at the Augusta House. This meeting will be followed by a dinner at 6:30 at which Brownell will address the group. Governor Horace A. Hill, Jr. will also speak. Notices have been sent to the Congressional delegation in Washington and although they are very busy it is hoped that they will be present.

Vice Chairman, E. May Chapman will hold a meeting of the ladies earlier in the afternoon. Marion Martin will undoubtedly be present. This is Chairman Brownell's first visit with Maine Republicans. He will give them his National Program. In speaking of Brownell's visit, Chairman Morton said that he understood Chairman Brownell felt that our program must be a constructive one which will lead America carefully and securely in the last of its war days and the re-conversion days to follow—one which will provide jobs and opportunities for Americans, and freedom from red tape and government restrictions.

Was On Bunker Hill

Roger Vose, 23, Seaman, 1c, U. S. Navy, who is now at home in Rockland with his wife, the former Gladys Gray, and two children, Ronald and Barbara, had a narrow escape when the Airplane Carrier Bunker Hill was bombed by two suicide Japanese planes May 10. The first bomb struck within ten feet and the second within 50 feet of where Vose was stationed on the port quarter. Vose, with a Mae West jacket on, went overboard and was in the water two hours before being picked up by a destroyer. Those picked up were returned to the carrier the following day. Luckily his only injuries were a few scratches on his hands.

'Pete' Newell Honored

A Famous Bath Shipbuilder
Guest Of Honor At Samoset Luncheon

William S. (Pete) Newell, president and general manager of the Bath Iron Works Corporation, was honored at a luncheon Wednesday at the Samoset Hotel, by the Kennebec Wharf & Coal Company and the Wilmore Steamship Company. Forty-two were seated at a long table in the spacious dining room, which overlooks Penobscot Bay. Nelson C. Smith, president of the companies arranging this testimonial, was master of ceremonies.

Mr. Smith, immediately following the luncheon, gave an interesting talk on some of the illustrious men of Maine, from early times, closing with the statement "This is the easiest job I ever had to do." Mr. Newell retorted, "You got yourself into it, Nelson."

Several letters and telegrams, received from men high up in industry and government, were read by Mr. Smith, including laudations from Gov. Horace A. Hildreth, who was attending a meeting of governors in Mackinac; Secretary of the Navy James V. Forrestal, praising Newell's work and the outstanding records of Bath-built fighting vessels; Senator Owen Brewster, who included in his wire, "No living man inspires confidence as you do;" Admiral Emory S. Land of the U. S. Maritime Commission, Senator Harold H. Burton of Ohio, Senator Robert Hale, who wired, in part, "No one has done more for the State of Maine;" Senator Wallace H. White, Sumner Sewall, former governor, and Dana C. Douglas of the Maine Central Railroad.

A happy feature of the afternoon was the conferring upon Mr. Newell by his associates and friends, of the Degree of Human Engineering. Mr. Smith, in making this unique award said that Mr. Newell unfailingly had the faculty of getting on with people and always inspired men and women to do their best.

And then came the presentation of a beautiful silver platter, engraved with the image of the U.S.S. Drayton, Bath built destroyer, the fastest ship of its type in the Navy.

Responding, Mr. Newell said, "To say I am overwhelmed, is putting it mildly," continuing with the observation that, "Mrs. Newell would say, you like it, 'Pete,' whereupon Mrs. Newell, sitting across the table, remarked, 'Of course you like it—and I do, too.'" Mr. Newell spoke of the wonderful co-operation of everyone, in industry and government, as well as the members of the large force at the shipyard.

Those speaking briefly in praise of Mr. Newell and his accomplishments for the State and the Nation, undoubtedly from the bottom of their hearts, were: Mrs. Sumner Sewall, expressing regret that Mr. Sewall could not be present; Rear Admiral Leo Otis Colbert, of Washington, director of the Coast and Geodetic Survey; Albert T. Gould of Cambridge, Mass., and Thomaston, reminiscing concerning the degree of Master of Arts, presented Mr. Newell by President Sills of Bowdoin, in 1940; Andrew B. Sides, president of the New England Ship-

Bill Geagan who writes that entertaining sports column in the Bangor News tells about a tussle between an eel and a mink at Birch Point. The mink undertook to swallow the eel, but the eel had a different idea and wrapped his body around the mink's neck. The mink won, his teeth evidently getting into the eel's brain, and she, (or he) swam ashore with the prey and dragged her dinner into the brush.

It is evident that Editor Robbins of the Deer Isle Messenger is a lover of the genus known as lobster stew, hence literary masterpiece which composed after eating one (or more) at a firemen's banquet in his home town. Wonder if it could touch the one served to me at Northwest Harbor a good many years ago when a complimentary banquet was being tendered the Defender's crew.

Tobacco products may be scarce, but the season is certainly humid—Ed Pointer in the Boston Globe.

I am in favor of prompt and summary treatment of the German war criminals—and for punsters like Ed Pointer.

A water-covered field in West Rockport attracted the attention of a passer-by after one of the recent heavy rains, and in the farm yard he noticed that the owner had been making lobster traps. "Going to set 'em in the field?" he asked. The farmer's reply was about what one would have the right to expect under the present exasperating circumstances.

Many Rockland citizens marveled at the bright red glow in the northwestern sky Tuesday night, lasting later than 9 o'clock. And early risers Wednesday morning were treated to the same unusual spectacle.

It's all right to be wet outside if you're already wet inside. This was evidently the theory of two men who sat on the Glover wharf in a pouring rain helping themselves to liberal portions from a quart bottle.

Wooden pavements were the invention of Nicholson in 1854. Many years ago I trod a Quebec street paved in this manner.

Among those who read the late Dr. G. L. Crockett's poem "The Old Quarry" published in connection with Sidney L. Winslow's Vinahaven history, was the Doctor's sister-in-law, Mrs. Nora Wilde of Winter Park, Fla. Writing to Mary Perry Rich, Mrs. Wilde says: "He put a good deal in the poem. I remember when he wrote it. He used to compose a verse or so when he was out on business and he always committed it to memory at the time."

One year ago: Reginald Michaud of Camden was drowned when his boat capsized in Megunticook Lake. The Medomak Camp boys arrived. Chief Justice Harlan F. Stone passed through the city on his way to Isle au Haut—Merle F. Dobbins was appointed Sea and Shore Fisheries warden. Among the deaths: Rockland, Mrs. Fred Howlett, 66; Tenant's Harbor, Mrs. Aaron Wall, 80.

THE DREAMS AHEAD
What would we do in this world of ours?
Were it not for the dreams ahead?
For thorns are mixed with the blooming flowers.
No matter which path we tread,
And each of us has his golden goal,
Stretching far into the years;
And ever he climbs with a hopeful soul,
With alternate smiles and tears.
To some it's a dream of high estate
To some it's a dream of wealth;
To some it's a dream of a true wife
In a constant search for health.
To some it's a dream of home and wife
To some it's a dream of love;
The dreams ahead are what make each life

"The Black Spaniel Mystery," by Betty Cavanna. Published by The Westminster Press, Philadelphia.

When an author adds to her list of books a mystery story as exciting as Betty Cavanna has made this one, her success is assured; especially with those persons who love dogs, and what really human person can help a love for dogs, I ask you?

This story of two black cocker spaniel pups, trotting down the winding road in summer time, was not so very extraordinary; now comes into play a pair of twins, Judy and Jeff. A neighbor who claims the dogs, and another person, a wealthy dog fancier, who also claims they are his thoroughbreds. Trouble and complications hold up the tale like easy falling rain storms this year.

The twins play their part fearlessly. All sorts of things happen including a heavy thunderstorm. The author is most skillful in her dialogue and her art is entranced by a charming degree of humor and clear knowledge of dogs.

The mystery is finally solved, and the two nice thoroughbred cockers are at last with their rightful owner. This is more of a gentle art story than a rightful mystery of the crime wave variety; and 'tis quite worth your while and pleasure, in solving it not too long detail.

"Cruising The Massachusetts Coast With Edward Rowe Snow." Yankee Publishing Company, Boston, Mass. Dedicated to Alton Hall Blackington, New England's Gifted Story Teller.

In this more than ordinarily delightful cruise about the historic coast of Massachusetts, replete with romance and valiant adventure of past days; one finds detailed in this small compass of publication, much of history otherwise lost to the present student, and of an intimate nature; with facts well verified. The illustrations are mostly from pictures taken by the author, whose knowledge of coastal life of the past century is unique.

These intimate touches of towns and cities, islands, lighthouses, monuments and forts, are what we have been needing for better understanding of this coastal portion when we sail, or visit these parts by any method.

Lieut. Snow has a rare gift for finding not half, but all the points of value in each section. He has been bomb-proof from taking for granted or hearsay; he proves his points historically. This one has a bit of Americana worthy his regard. To find the names of two beloved Rockland friends in this book (Lieut. Snow is almost ours, as well as Alton Blackington), is an extra delight to everyone who has read Lieut. Snow's "Storms and Shipwrecks of New England," and "Pirates and Buccaneers of the Atlantic Coast," and "Famous Lighthouses of New England," all of this poignant reading, and all well illustrated.

[EDITORIAL]

Great Britain could not have survived without American aid. That is what Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery told a group of American officers and enlisted men in Germany the other day, and in the light of the dramatic events of the past two years nobody doubts that he was speaking the solid truth. Those of us who are old enough to remember the aftermath of World War No. I will recall the heated debates which were held throughout the world on the subject "Who won the war." And we all remember the scant praise which was accorded the American Expeditionary Force, particularly by the British. But 25 years later the British were faced with the real test of whether they would be able to survive Germany's terrific thrusts and America went to their assistance just as London seemed about to be bombed out of existence. Uncle Sam was the friend in need, and if British opinion toward him was not softened by that experience it never will be. There are probably many Britons who will not agree with the frank statement of Gen. Montgomery, but Germany knows it is true, whether our Allies do or not.

The forthcoming visit of Herbert Brownell, Jr., chairman of the Republican National Committee, will be the most important event of the year in Maine political circles, and credit must be given to State Chairman Morton for arranging it. With Mr. Morton the political situation did not end on election day. He is a firm believer in eternal vigilance and is manifesting it, quietly, to be sure, during the off year. Members of the State Committee will be anxious to get a line on the present political status, and what is to be expected in advance of the congressional elections one year hence. So Brownell's message will fall upon keen ears.

Disquieting is the statement of Leo T. Crowley, foreign economic administrator, that "the German war potential could be revived almost immediately if given the chance. Allied bombers stopped that country's war industry, he says, but did not reduce most German plants to utter ruin. Crowley proposed disarmament of the whole German economic ability to wage war. Stringent control will be necessary, he added, "until generations of peace from German aggression have demonstrated that it is no longer necessary to keep open the watchful eye and maintain the necessary surveillance."

The division of opinion in Bangor as to Wednesday afternoon closing appears to be an attitude of opposition, for according to the Bangor Daily News, only 28 proprietors have agreed to the plan. Some of the neighborhood stores are also going to close.

The peace charter adopted in San Francisco finds at first glance strong endorsement from the peoples of the Allied Nations, with every prospect that it will be ratified by the governments concerned. The Christian Science Monitor says it:

Not only does this Charter make no pretense of being fool-proof. It also frankly takes over the world as it is now, and says that until the world is different, this is the way peace will have to be served in it. There are abstract injustices in the Charter. There is, for example, the possibility of impairment of small-nation sovereignty while big-Power sovereignty looms above the reach of "the law." But if these abstract injustices are to be removed, a good many people are going to have to learn a great deal more about the practical possibilities in the Golden Rule in international affairs.

There are weaknesses in the Charter, too. They may demand that in a crisis the peoples and their leaders show great wisdom and courage to preserve the new organization, and with it, the peace. But if there are injustices and weaknesses here, there are also efforts for justice and designs for strength. There are provisions for discussion of all questions within the scope of the Charter by the Assembly, in which small nations will be predominant. There are provisions for placing force immediately at the disposal of the Security Council, instead of reserving it for use only at the discretion of the separate governments.

The Charter is now available to everyone. It was published in this and many other newspapers late this week. It deserves to be studied by every newspaper reader. We believe most thoughtful readers will agree with our estimate of it. This is: that the Charter is not good enough to warrant any nation's or any citizen's dreamy dependence on it; but that it is good enough to fight for as it is now, and to cherish as one does any great promise, by working for ultimate realization of the goals toward which it points.

Lieut. Snow Honored

His Proud Daddy In Possession of Fine Letter From Gen. Kenney

Lieut. Governor Wilbert Snow of Connecticut (formerly of Spruce Head) was gratified recently to receive the following letter from Gen. George C. Kenney, U. S. Army Commander in the Southwest Pacific Area.

"Recently your son, Lieut. John F. Snow, was decorated with the Air Medal. It was an award made in recognition of courageous service to his combat organization, his fellow American airmen, his country, his home and to you. He was cited for meritorious achievement while participating in aerial flights in the Southwest Pacific Area from June 12, 1944 to Jan. 17, 1945.

"Your son took part in sustained operational flight missions during which hostile contact was probable and expected. These flights included dropping supplies and transporting troops over territory that was continually patrolled by enemy fighter aircraft. Often landings were made on fields which were only a few miles from enemy bases. These operations aided considerably in the recent successes in this theatre.

I would like to tell you how genuinely proud I am to have men such as your son in my command, and how gratified I am to know that young Americans with such courage and resourcefulness are fighting our country's battle against the aggressor nations. You, Mr. Snow, have every reason to share that pride and gratification."

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Godfrey and daughter, Gloria of Rockland and Mrs. Bertha Hanley of South Thomaston.

Mrs. Charles Wotton and daughter of Boston dined last Friday with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Allen.

Mrs. Gordon Sutherland and three sons arrived here last Friday from Cambridge, Mass., for the summer. They will occupy the Log Cabin on Spruce Head Island. They will be joined by Mrs. Sylvia Burns who will spend the summer with them.

Mrs. Robert Wolf and daughter Stephanie are visiting Mrs. Loretta Morton in Camden.

Miss Ethel Sheldon has arrived from Bloomfield, N. J., for the summer.

Rev. and Mrs. Thomas Griffith and son Arthur and Miss Ann McAlery of Waterville spent several days this week with Mrs. Jennie Cleveland.

Daughters of Union Veterans will meet Monday at the home of Lina Carroll, 629 Old County Road, for a social afternoon and business meeting in the evening. Members will take prizes for the white elephant game.

Signalman Charles Duff Has Learned What Sub Attacks Are Like

Coast Guardsman Charles Duff, Signalman second class, has served aboard a Coast Guard manned destroyer escort for 14 months, while the vessel was on convoy and anti-submarine patrol in the North Atlantic and Mediterranean.

"Sub attacks were as frequent as plane assaults on Allied shipping," the Coast Guardsman said, in recounting how his ship oftentimes was responsible for supplies and reinforcements getting through to the fighting forces in Italy and Southwest France.

He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Duff, of Masonic street, Rockland. A brother, John, is a corporal in the Army Air Corps. Coast Guardsman Duff is a graduate of Rockland High School, class of 1939, and a former employee of the Maine Central Railroad. He joined the Coast Guard in July, 1942, and is now serving aboard a Coast Guard manned LCI in the Pacific.

Greenleaf, Who Won Championship for Boothbay Harbor

With a record of nine school-boy league wins and no losses, Dwight W. Greenleaf, 15, six-foot Boothbay Harbor high pitcher, excited speculation today among sports followers in this section over his major league prospects.

Young Greenleaf is the son of Maine's Sea and Shore Fisheries commissioner, Arthur R. Greenleaf, who has had inquiries about the lad's ideas on a league try-out.

Boothbay Harbor high won the Knox-Lincoln League championship with young Greenleaf hanging up 50 straight strikeouts. The High School aggregation, behind Greenleaf, turned back the semi-pro Tigers last Sunday.

INTIMATE VIEWS OF VINALHAVEN
History, Home Life and Personal Recollections

By SIDNEY L. WINSLOW

During the years, prior to the advent of the automobile, movies, radios and other present day forms of amusement, our local pastimes were home made. Full description of many of these functions appeared in local news sheets contemporary with that era. They are very amusing and I am tempted to present a few of them at this time but am afraid they will have to wait until a few more items pertaining to our town's industries, past and present, are dealt with.

So today I'm presenting what little data I have unearthed and observed in connection with Vinalhaven's fishing industry.

The following is from the "Vinalhaven Wind" of Jan. 26, 1884, under the title of "Our Industries."

"From the first settlement down to the present day, fishing has been one of the chief industries of this island. The fish caught around these shores were all used in the home market or sold in neighboring towns until but a few years ago, but by the energy and enterprise a few men the trade was so developed that we are now sending fish, not only to most of the principal cities of the country but to the West Indies and round Cape Horn to the distant shores of the Pacific Slope."

"In order to give our readers a correct idea of the rapid growth and development of this industry we are giving in detail a comparative account of the business done at its commencement with that of late years."

"The year 1878, in which the firm of Lane & Libby commenced business, marks the real beginning of the fish business in this town. In that year this firm created a building two stories high, on a wharf, affording room for one vessel to land at a time. This constituted their yard, and from this small beginning, arose in this short space of time their present large and commodious buildings."

"A comparison of the business done by them in this year, and that done by one and other firms who have started since, will be interesting and give a true estimate of the growth and present proportions of our fish industry."

"On the third day of May 1878, Lane & Libby bought the first lot of fish which consisted of 379 small cod, for which they paid $2.87 to Edwin Arey, who has thus the honor of landing the first lot of fish which started this enterprising firm."

"The following account shows the amount of work done by them in 1878: Total number of pounds of green fish bought, 754,261. Amount of cash paid for fish, $5031.88. Amount of cash paid for liver and oil, $595.81. Amount of cash paid for hake sounds, $1991.09. Total number quintals fish handled, mostly hard dried for West India market, 4213. Hake bought this year as low as 25c per cwt. Hake sold this year as low as 87 1/2c per quintal. Total number of vessels landing fish and belonging to home port, 8. Number belonging to other ports, 22. Number of small boats under 5 tons, landing fish, 65. Total number hds, salt used in curing fish in yard and aboard vessels and boats, 725. Number of butts used in salting fish, 100.

"The following will show amount of work done in 1883. Total number of fish bought, 1,493,210. Amount paid for fish, $23,120.81. Amount paid for hake sounds, $3105.20. Amount paid for liver and oil, $2,392.00. Total number quintals of fish handled, 12,015. Total number of vessels landing fish from home port, 17. Total number from other ports, 75, extending from Eastport to Boston. Total number of boats under 5 tons, 56. Total number hds, salt used and sold to be used, 2200. Total number of butts used in salting fish, 525."

"The extension of their business has caused the extension of their buildings and now at their wharf, four vessels can be discharged at a time. They have a U. S. bonded warehouse capable of holding 1500 hds. of salt located but 50 feet from capstan of vessel."

"So modest is this firm in its pretensions that it is not generally known that they are the inventors of many useful appliances in their line of business to which they hold the right."

"All the water used in their yard is pumped by steam, iron pipes leading the water to all parts of the buildings. All fish cured are handled by three-wheel carts which were first adopted and used by them. During the past year an ice house has been erected with a capacity of 300 tons with arrangements so that ice may be placed aboard vessels with great speed and ease."

"The invention which we particularly refer to is that of a hydraulic press which was arranged by Thomas Libby, junior member of the firm of the firm, which has entirely revolutionized the system of handling fish, and to it in a large measure the firm owes its extensive business today. This is the first and only hydraulic press used for packing fish in the country."

"The old contrivance of packing by means of large screws requiring two or three men to handle them, was hard, laborious and slow, but the inventive ingenuity of Mr. Libby has done away with this and while other parties are using the old method which has been in use for over forty years, the firm of Lane and Libby are being benefited by this invention. An idea of what this press can do may be had from the fact, that the first year in business they packed only 528 1/2 qts. while during the past year they packed 8103 qts."

"A branch of the fish industry building Corporation, South Portland, and long time friend of Mr. Newell, who said that, "South Portland would not have built ships if it had not been for 'Pete'."

Archibald M. Main, executive vice president of the Bath Iron Works, who had been associated with Mr. Newell since the yard reopened in 1927, said, "We have not had a cross word in 18 years," and H. Nelson McDougall, Portland banker, stated, "Any thing 'Pete' will put his name to, I'm for."

Others lauding Mr. Newell were Alan L. Bird, Rockland attorney; Frank B. Nichols, Bath publisher, who offered the information that Mr. Newell was a descendant of Mollie Stark; Gilbert Verney, Brunswick rayon mill operator; Henry C. Wright of Bath, who mentioned the changes in shipbuilding in recent years, and of Mr. Newell, said, "As a friend there is none better;" Fred N. Boston, Gardner coal dealer, and H. R. Karcher of Portland.

Gifts for the ladies present were beautiful floral pins, and for the men there was a copy of "Action Tonight" the story of the American Destroyer O'Bannon in the Pacific, by James D. Horan. The O'Bannon was built at Bath.

Several of those present, at the invitation of Rear Admiral Colbert, went aboard one of the Coast and Geodetic Survey vessels anchored in Rockland harbor.

The all-day party closed with a buffet supper. Other present were: Edward H. Owen, Taunton, Mass. Mr. and Mrs.

which has greatly increased of late is the method of packing and cutting fish in 40-pound boxes and crates for the Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Chicago markets. The shipment amounted last year to 2500 boxes and crates.

"The year 1883 has been an exceptionally hard for buyers and fishermen in general; this firm paid out $25,300 more in 1882, than last year, handled 2200 qts. less and prices being from 50 to 100% less. The total number of men estimated employed in vessels in boats catching fish for this firm is 600; total number employed in yard, 4 to 16."

"The lobster industry has been attended to also by this firm. Last year they shipped 1920 barrels and placed 41,000 in Johnson & Young's lobster pound, paid $13,990 for them, prices per barrel ranging from $4 to $11 equalling in some instances to 25c each."

"From the above statements not only can an estimate the extent of our fish industry be obtained, but of the energy and enterprise of this firm. Its growth has been rapid, its progress marked with great ability, it has opened for itself, markets all over the country and on foreign shores, adding greatly to the trade and industry of our island town."

In the picture accompanying this article Vinalhavenites may discover some familiar faces.

On the wharf: Miles Sawyer, Dana Smith, Everett Libby, Al Miller, Tyler Coombs, Fred Healey, Randolph Bickford, Otis Efterton and others.

When times of dreary drought hold sway, In wood and field as order of the day: When the parching winds make brooks run dry And even deep down when rivulets pry Seeking soundless waters in urgent cry, There, an unknown spring gives life to ease The drooping forest, with brilliant leaves And blossoms rare, mid leaves and brush; To nurture grapes on vines for vintage flush.

And thus in Arid days when hopes grow faint For showers of favor, when needed plants Arise in prayers, divine hand holds The hidden springs for release of leisure. We draw our sustenance clear and sweet From fountains eternal laid at our feet. Do we open our eyes to all these gifts? Do we feel this power in life's uplifts? Do we thank the giver for all his gifts? Kathleen S. Fuller

Rare books from Munich, Germany, were found in huge packing crates and much other valuable data to add to the other hoards the Nazi planned for their world of life and joy, when we were all put out of the way. These have just been unearthed. Over $5,000,000 worth.

These good old days of Summer and starlit nights perfumed With flowers and bird murmur, Will come when clouds have resumed Their time of rest from weeping And sunshine comes with reaping Its harvest of floral blooms.

Over 7,000,000 pounds of materials of great strategic wartime value were brought to the United States in quick time by airplanes in 1944. This shows some of the greatest value of the airplane work these days.

What became of those soft green sweet days of Spring we used to have?

The University of Maine at this time has on record 114 gold stars and 23 prisoners of war with nearly 30 missing. Also from this great school there are over 100 wearing decorations. Also from Orono went 87 women into war service. A great record this.

Dr. Hinkley's Good Will School has about 50 of the boys and girls from that fine place in war service.

Citizenship was recently denied a German woman who failed to support the United States, and lacked proof of loyalty as an American in heart for the future. That is what is needed for the protection of us all.

The above alphabetical lettering is the name adopted for the District Association of Hospital Regional Group, at the meeting held Wednesday night at the Episcopal Parish House in Camden, where 40 sat down to a delicious lobster salad supper.

After discussing with keen relish the provided feast, the program, with President Ralph L. Wign of Knox Hospital, presiding, was carried out in this staunch and serious head's efficient and well organized manner. When Ralph puts his shoulder to any wheel it is sure to move with perfect motion.

Dr. Hill of Waterville, always a favorite, spoke delightfully and forcefully on subjects dear to his heart. A School for Administration to be conducted at Colby in September. He also gave mention of the meeting to be held in August, with out of State speakers for the up-building of hospitals, this meeting to be held at Wiscasset.

Dr. Harold Jameson gave an excellent resume of Blue Cross and what it means to hospitals with clear and studied finish he covered the subject well.

Rev. George Chiera of Wiscasset spoke on the personal responsibilities of trustees of hospitals and public relations.

Mrs. King of Bath gave a most enthusiastic report of that community's loyalty in support of a marvellously organized hospital auxiliary, and how they have helped in these days and months of shortage in all lines of nursing and hospital work at Bath.

Camden's new president, Avery A. Matheson, said he was there to learn.

Miss Yelleana Selvers, a recent member of the Bath Hospital force, spoke with keen appreciation of work there and what it needed.

Belfast was well represented by Linwood Thompson, who always delights his hearers by his straight from the shoulder talks on personal duty as members of boards of directors of our hospitals. Every word was excellent advice.

The last speaker, Kathleen S. Fuller, of The Courier-Gazette, and long time member of the board of directors, spoke on Hospitals and Public Relations. Her talk was short and to the point.

Everyone was high in praise of these get-togethers and the enthusiasm they engender for best effort in hospital work. K. S. F.

TESTIMONIAL DINNER

June 25—I have just returned from a testimonial dinner to Rev. William H. Jones D.D. and his wife, given at the Lafayette Hotel, Portland, by the Baptist ministers and their wives of western Maine and the Cumberland United Baptist Association.

Dr. Jones has been pastor of the Immanuel Baptist Church since it was incorporated over 22 years ago. He lived to see it planned, built, dedicated and occupied and paid for in full. Further in that long ministry it has been endowed for over $110,000.

At the head table Rev. Winthrop Robinson acted as toastmaster and beside him his lovely wife, then Dr. and Mrs. Jones and Rev. Thomas Brindley and wife. After the dinner, Rev. Mr. Brindley spoke for and brought greetings from the State Convention. He paid high tribute to both Dr. and Mrs. Jones. He spoke of Dr. Jones, while he was President of United Baptist Convention. He regretted that Dr. John S. Pendleton was in the hospital and unable to attend.

Mr. Robinson then called on William A. Holman, also a former President of the State Convention and of the United Cumberland Association. Mr. Holman spoke for the Immanuel Church and his long and happy relations with Dr. Jones and his wife over a period equal to one-third of the allotted time of man.

Mr. Holman said he had served the church for over two decades in every position, on every committee and office save that of deacon. Coming from a family of ministers, he had never known in his long life a minister so well poised in his pulpit as his pastor. They had walked together in love and harmony always. Rev. Mr. Kingsley of Saco spoke lovingly of his long friendship for them both.

And Mrs. Kingsley spoke directly in appreciation of Mrs. Jones. They were followed by Rev. Francis O'Brien D.D., who reviewed his long association with the Jones family.

Rev. Walter M. Colby had charge of the dinner and there was lovely music.

NEAL-HOOPER

Richard Gerald Neal of Friendship and Sylvia Evangeline Hooper of Rockland were married in the Littlefield Memorial Baptist Church June 21, Rev. Charles A. Marsteller of Bangor, formerly of Rockland, reading the double ring service.

Mrs. Hiram H. Crie of West Palm Beach, Fla., was matron of honor, and Mrs. Evelyn Spencer of New Haven, Conn., was bridesmaid. Both are sisters of the bride. Petty Officer Kenneth A. Hooper of Great Lakes, Ill., brother of the bride, was best man. The ushers were Carroll Wixson, William Dorman, Ronald Lord and George McLain, all of Rockland.

The church was banked with mock orange blossoms and there were baskets of bridal wreath, peonies and irises.

The bride was adorable in a white satin gown, tulle yoke, medallions of daisies, and train, finger-tip veil falling from a net halo, outlined in seed pearls. She carried an arm bouquet of American Beauty roses with a center of gardenias. The matron of honor wore an aqua jersey gown with lace motifs, and a corsage of Belmont gardenias. The dress of the bridesmaid was twilight blue taffeta with lace ruffles and her corsage was of pink roses and sweet peas.

Mrs. Hooper, mother of the bride, wore a gray sheer with accessories and corsage of white carnations, while Mrs. Neal, mother of the bridegroom, wore blue crepe and corsage of talisman roses.

Preceding the ceremony, Miss Miriam Dorman sang, "At Dawning," and "I Love You Truly," accompanied by Mrs. William Dorman, who also played the wedding marches.

A reception was held at the home of the mother of the bride at 118 Camden street, the decorations there being peonies and bridal wreath. The bride cake was topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom, and was cut by the bride with the assistance of the bridegroom. Mrs. Annie Dorman served punch and Mrs. Vivian Lord was in charge of the guest book.

Mrs. Neal wore for traveling a blue suit with white accessories and corsage of white gardenias. Mr. and Mrs. Neal will be at home in Portland, after July 2.

Mrs. Neal graduated from Rockland High School in 1943. She is a member of the Littlefield Baptist Church and has been employed at the E. B. Crockett store. She is the daughter of Mrs. Ina M. Hooper. Mr. Neal, the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Neal, graduated from Thomaston High School and Gorham Normal School. He is stationed with the Coast Guard at Portland.

Out of town guests included Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Neal, Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Simmons, Mrs. Ethel Day, Dudley Winchenbaugh of Friendship, Mrs. Evelyn Spencer and Marguerite Cold of New Haven, Conn.; Mrs. Hiram H. Crie, West Palm Beach, Fla.; Kenneth A. Hooper, Great Lakes, Ill.; Eunice Eccles and Miriam Dorman of Gordon College, Boston; Norma Prescott of Dover-Foxcroft and Mrs. Katherine Marsteller, Bangor.

Lauriat-Welch

Miss Jane Vollans Welch, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. George H. Welch, became the bride of Nathaniel Page Lauriat III, son of Mrs. Charles E. Lauriat Sr., of Hull, Mass., at a candlelight ceremony performed Saturday afternoon at Christ Church, Universalist, in Mid-dletown, N. Y.

Mr. Welch gave his daughter in marriage and performed the double ring ceremony, assisted by Rev. Stephen H. Pritchman of Boston. The bride wore a gown of candlelight satin with a bodice of heirloom rose point lace and sweeping train. Her full-length veil was caught on an heirloom rose point lace cap.

The maid of honor was Miss Judith Gibbs Greene, who wore a pale aqua gown with lace bodice and net skirt and a matching picture hat of starched net.

Bridesmaids were Miss Barbara Woodland of Watertown, Mass., and Miss Patricia Lauriat of Hull, sister of the bridegroom. All three attended Oak Grove School, Maine.

Boatswain's Mate George B. Lauriat of Southwest Harbor, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Mrs. Frederick Lawton of Newburgh sang "Oh Perfect Love" during a brief recital preceding the ceremony.

A wedding supper was served at the bride's home. Mr. and Mrs. Lauriat left on a wedding trip through the New England States.

Mrs. Lauriat is graduate of St. Lawrence University and is a member of Pi Beta Phi. Until her marriage she was associated with Station WKIP, Poughkeepsie.

Mr. Lauriat is a graduate of Harvard University; Harvard Divinity School; Brookline, Mass.; High School, and Meadville Theological School at the University of Chicago, where he graduated last week with high honors. He will be ordained to the Unitarian ministry in the Fall.

The above ceremony is of special interest to Rockland readers as the bride's father was pastor of the Church of Immanuel, Universalist from 1930 to 1935.

WASHINGTON—AND YOU

By Margaret Chase Smith

Washington, June 27—Many letters have come in about my suggestion that the Army permit wives of men assigned to duty in occupied countries for one year or an indefinite time to join them. This request was made only after careful thought and study. It was not an emotional decision. It is my opinion that such a provision would cause military officials to keep the occupied zone assignments of family men to a minimum and be ready with similar plans for the Navy when hostilities end in the Pacific.

I am also suggesting that as far as possible men in the regular services be used for these assignments, that reserves be used only when volunteering.

I first wrote the Secretary of War early in the year and followed the suggestion last month when we were hearing so much about Army restrictions on our men fraternizing with Germans. I asked them to be realistic in this issue, to remember that during days of reconstruction our men must have outside companionship, that everything must be done to lighten their burden and improve their morale and efficiency. This proposal was prompted by my desire to prevent further disintegration of the American home and the American family life. The absence of these men has already placed a severe strain upon the preservation of domestic ideals.

On General Eisenhower's visit to the Capitol he asked if Mrs. Eisenhower would return to Europe with him. He said "not now." The General explained that there were food shortages, also that living quarters were inadequate for that essential people, that his wife was in the same position as other wives and until his men—officers and G. I.'s—were given such privileges, Mrs. Eisenhower would have to wait.

A suggestion came in from a citizen of Androscooggin County suggesting that the War Department discharge from the Women's Army Corps those whose husbands have not been in the service. The Department has given consideration to this suggestion but feels that the system already in effect is as fair as any could be.

The plans for the demobilization of the Women's Army Corps is of interest to many. Provision has been made for the release of the members and a score of 44 points has been set up for them. In addition to this, married women will be released at their own request if their husbands have been separated from the armed service and return to civilian life.

The War Department advises that in developing their demobilization plans, it was the aim to keep the plan as simple as possible and to include only those factors which it was felt would be considered to be the most important, just and impartial by all military personnel and the public. Because of the numerous reasons on which discharges could be based and because the decision would have a tremendous effect on the morale, actual surveys were made to ascertain the opinion of the service people themselves. The plan as published has been generally accepted as fair and impartial.

The Department feels that while the point system of discharge will not satisfy all concerned, that it would not have been possible to devise a system that would operate with greater justice to all military personnel.

A citizen of our District asks why the Office of Defense Transportation should request wives and mothers to say at home until the boys come in from overseas. This writer believes the request is inhuman. This is right if the boys are not to be given a furlough and an opportunity to visit home. But if such traveling crowds the trains so much that many boys would be prevented from reaching their homes, then ODT would be justified in their request. We are told that approximately 3,000 boys will be coming in and going out of New York every day and we must make it easy for them to reach their destinations.

Ronald Carver's Entry, the "Champions of Democracy" In Gregory Essay Contest

Throughout history the ideals of democracy have been challenged many times, but never have there been two more difficult conflicts than the American Revolution and the present day world-wide struggle. Today this nation is again fighting in order to maintain, for ourselves and our children, the freedom which the men and women of the thirteen colonies hoped to achieve. To appreciate freedom and liberty, we must understand fully the great adversities and trials that have had to be overcome. The Americans of Washington's day faced defeat on many occasions. We faced them, and perhaps will again face, many reverses and misfortunes.

George Washington commanded an army whose very existence was never a certainty. Many men could not or would not move outside the borders of their own states. Often they would, at the most critical moments, adjourn to their farms to harvest the plowing done or the crops harvested. Today, although men cannot leave or do as they desire, our armies still suffer many times from the lack of men and equipment at decisive battles.

We Americans, looking back, know that there would have been no successful outcome of the eight-year revolution, had it not been for George Washington and his followers and their French ally's faith, and the fact that their faith overcame the confusion and doubts raised by the skeptical people. For instance, we today almost disbelieve that there were those who sneered at the very principles of the Declaration of Independence. Yet there were those who called it "impractical and idealistic" to believe in such precepts. But, today there are numerous cynics who say the very same things concerning the formulation of a World Peace. Many then and now claim that it is ordained that we must always have dilemmas and wars.

Beyond a peradventure of a doubt, it was the essential principle of first things first, that was the foundation of the winning of the Revolution and the making of a Democracy. Before attempting to wage a large scale warfare the colonists sent aid to the towns that were blockaded. This shows that they accepted the fact that success comes by degrees. Too, this same principle is to be the basis for the winning of this war and the peace on a world-wide scale.

Washington's sense of proportion brought to him and his followers the ability to discount the smaller difficulties and concentrate on the larger objectives—the objectives of the entire civilized world. The revolutionaries were inspired to discount the cost, and look to the objective and keep their eyes upon it. Both our ally, France, and our enemy, England, of the Revolution, are among the leading nations today who are seeking to bribe about these objectives.

On the eve of victory of the Revolution, the great leader came home after six long years of leading the war to a nearly successful conclusion. This homecoming was, we know, a delightful experience, and the seclusion from the horrors of war must have been inspiring to Washington and his guests. Renewed, they set forth to resume their task of upholding the forces of right, even to death or did Martha Washington's son, Jack Custis, the homecoming in this war is not a withdrawal from the task, for the needs of the world are still pending. They resume the responsibility of finishing the war in the East and the returning to peacetime conditions. The world is the field that these men have pledged themselves to. As Washington helped to build a nation, so we must help to build a world.

These are the truths that have been faced by the people of Washington's generation, and which are being faced much the same today all over again.

Today, through the darkness that seems to descend on the nations of the world, we see a guiding light in looking back to past champions of Democracy. If we follow that and keep our torch high as our forefathers did, we shall see the fulfillment of our hopes for total victory, for freedom for all, and for a lasting peace.
